After the statement please tell me whether this would make you much more likely, somewhat more likely, a little more likely, no more likely, or less likely to support this Republican candidate in this year's election?

The Republican says, we still have more to do, but we are making progress on the biggest problems facing America. In Iraq, there are now 125 Iraqi battalions in combat, up from just a handful last year. As they continue to improve we will start to reduce troop levels by the end of the year. On health care, 24 million seniors have signed up for the new prescription drug benefit and it will cut the cost of prescription drugs for the typical senior in half. We are also making progress on the economy. After the setback caused by 9/11, our economic policies and tax relief have helped the economy recover and it is now improving every month. Unemployment is at its lowest level in nearly five years, and 4.7 million jobs have been created in the past two and a half years.

After the statement please tell me whether this would make you much more likely, somewhat more likely, a little more likely, no more likely, or less likely to support this Republican candidate in this year's election?

The Republican says, we still have more to do, but we are making progress on the biggest problems facing America. Over 125 Iraqi battalions are now in combat, the new prescription drug plan will cut the cost of senior's medication in half and because of our economic policies and tax relief the economy is now improving every month and nearly 5 million jobs have been created in the last two years. Now, Congress is taking important new steps on our country's problems. It is reducing American troop levels to a hundred thousand because Iraqis are taking up security roles, we are passing a new national energy plan to make American independent of foreign oil, a new border security plan to crack down on illegal immigrants and measures to bar them from using social services. We are doing the nation's business.
